An exceptional, robust, well preserved wine table from Shandong Province, wonderfully adaptable to contemporary interiors as a drinks table or side table.

Shandong is subject to the severe weather extremes of northern China, meaning its craftsmen evolved their design and construction into a sturdier form, involving extensive use of lacquer, clear and coloured, to protect from the elements.

This vernacular table was thus clearly built to last and is of strong construction with its thick framed surface. thick legs with supporting spandrels and stretchers that are staggered for strong support.

Traces of original lacquer remain on the honey hued elm wood.
