This exceptional long walnut table with beautifully scalloped spandrels is from Gansu Province in northwestern China, a region renowned for its rustic walnut furniture of solid sturdy construction with minimal decor.

The wide single plank surface can serve as a wonderful desk surface. This impressive table is a statement piece along a corridor, behind a sofa and along a wall setting off stunning artwork.

Design features include simple and elegantly carved spandrels, everted carved ends and mouldings. Thick strong tenons from the joinery are visible.

A fortuitous fish carving is visible on the table surface. The overall patina is of a deep warm hue of the walnut with remnants of lacquer. The side views of the table are softened by the open carved panels and terraced moulding from everted end, single plane and apron.

The gracious sturdy craftsmanship has similarities to the early C20th art deco style and would blend well in both modern and traditional interiors.
